School Life

The break between classes . . . the after-school coke . . . the noisy lunch hour . . . all of these are part of our lives . . . never to be relived and never to be forgotten!

Time flies, but these students aren't worried about missing their twenty-five minute lunch period.

Inside E.H.S.

There are only three minutes between classes but these students have found time to chat!

On the first day of school, Mrs. Johnson awaits the senior class, which she will sponsor.

Mrs. Johnson welcomes the incoming seniors for their last year at E.H.S.

The intercom system connects all the buildings on the south side of the highway and since its installation last year, has certainly proven its worth. By replacing the hand-delivered message, it has lessened the time and confusion involved in making daily announcements and locating individuals.

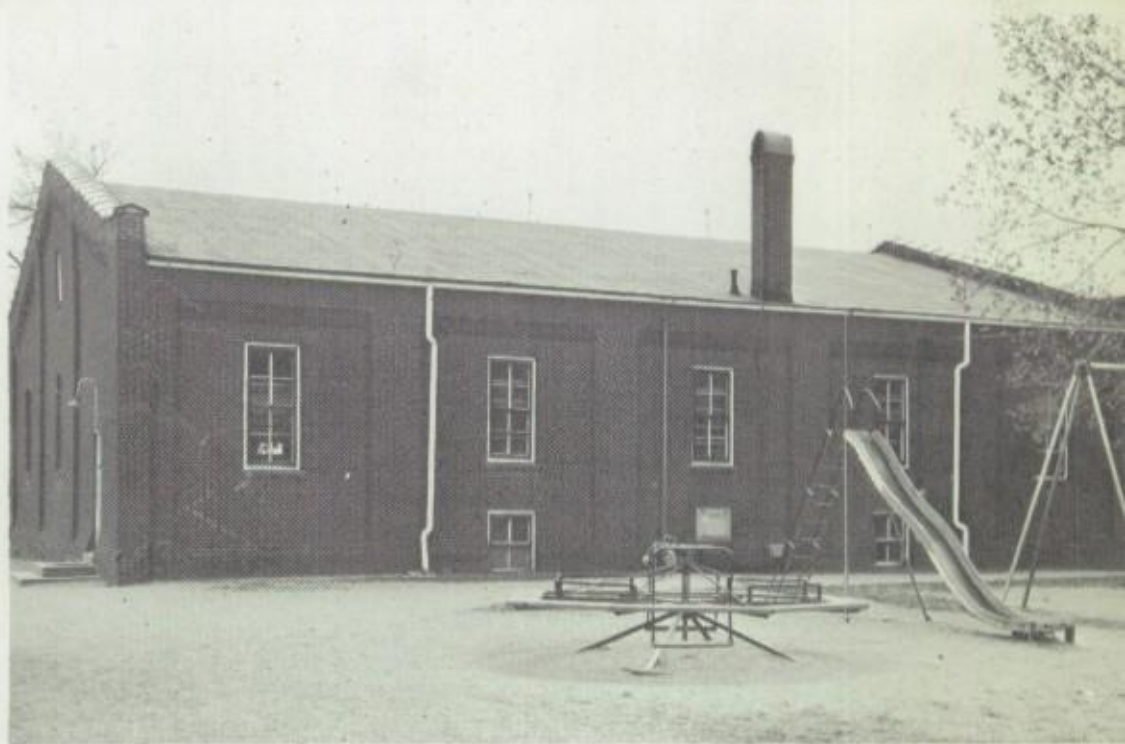

Since its completion, the Community Building has been the site of countless school and community functions.

Intercom Increases Efficiency

The Grade School is much the same on the outside as when constructed in 1900; the interior, however, has seen many improvements which insure a higher degree of safety.

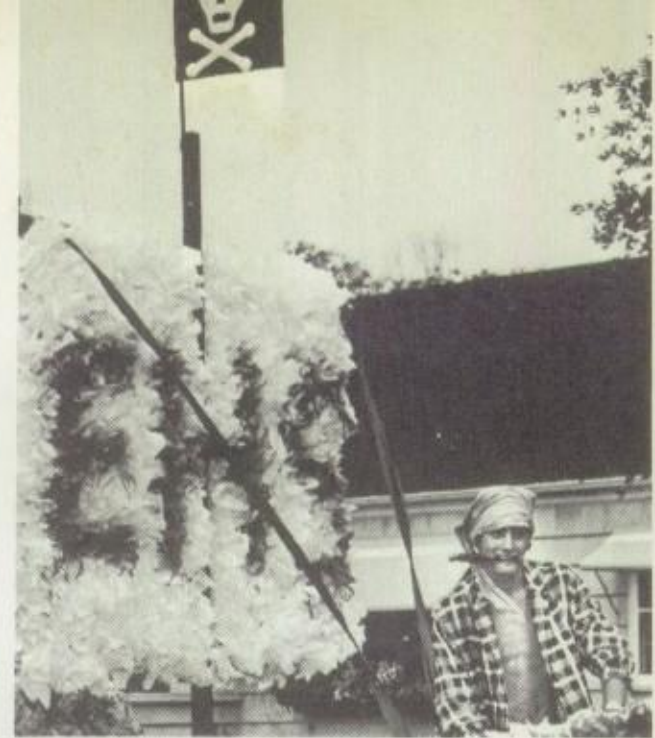

During recess in the bad weather, the Old Gymnasium makes an ideal recreational area for the grade school children. The high school physical education classes also take advantage of its facilities.

Mr. Hewitt pauses a moment before entering the band building where he and the band rehearse daily.

Margaret Malone and David Piller ride on the senior class entry in the float contest.

Van Morken poses as a pirate on the sophomore float, 'Sailing to Victory,' which captured first place.

During half-time the high school band presents a program depicting the life of an E.H.S. student.

"Autumn"

The Queen candidates and attendants await the announcement of the winner.

Last year's King, Jim Bailey, crowns Cindy Sanderson at the half-time of the game.

Everyone congratulates our new queen.

Norman Peterson seems to have outrun all of Earlville's interference.

Jim Seaton and Cindy Sanderson, voted King and Queen, ride in the afternoon parade with their court.

Nocturne" Draws Record Crowd

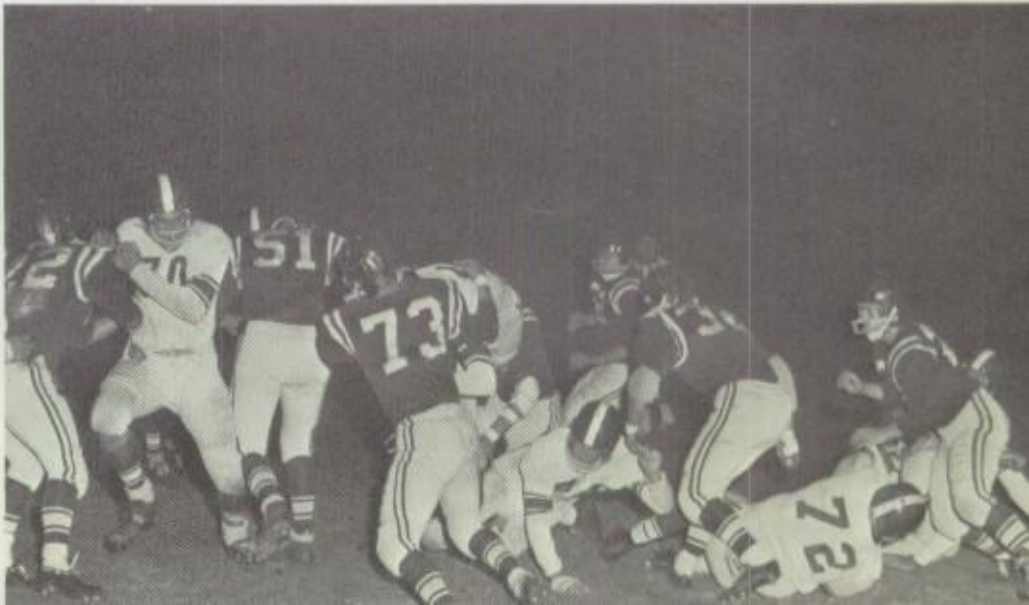

John Orr bursts downfield for another T.D. against Plano.

A plunge by one of Earlville's halfbacks is stopped by Plano on the goal line.

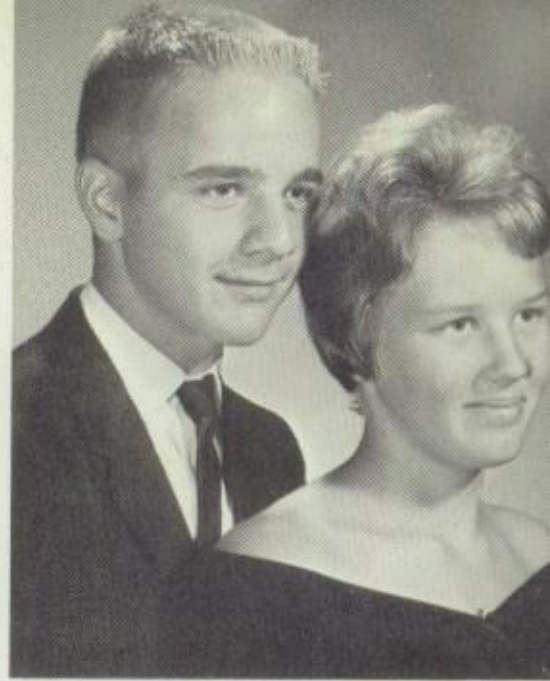

While Jim Feld waits to go into the game, Coach Wineburner explains to Larry Beck, a defensive lineman, one of the weak points in the opponent's offense.

Cindy Sanderson displays her complete joy at being our 1962 Homecoming Queen.

Yearbook Presents "La Moda Roma"

An Italian piazza was the scene of the style show which the yearbook staff sponsored as a fund-raising means on November 30, 1962. Mrs. Lloyd Wineburner arranged the stage setting of colonades and flowers and Teresa Norton provided a backdrop sketch of St. Peter's Cathedral. The music of Henry Orr's organ further enhanced the event. All ensembles shown were furnished by the Charm Shoppe of Earlville. Mrs. Harold Wold presided over a tea table decorated with a miniature fountain and lighted candles.

The entire production, in which the high school students took the starring roles, was directed by Mrs. Wayne Large and Mrs. T. O. Zimmerman. Mrs. Emery Johnson provided the commentary.

Each morning finds Mrs. Johnson in her office filling out the admit slips which students who have been absent must present to each of their teachers.

Busy Day from 8:25 to 3:31

Early in the fall the sophomore class meets to select workers for the popcorn stand they operate during the football and basketball games.

The monitor system in E.H.S. is operated to keep the halls clear and quiet during class time; all students going through must have a signed pass.

"Now we no longer will have to hear the windbag,--no?"

Junior Play Given on November 16, 1962

"Willie's Secret Weapon"

Willy doesn't want to go with Junior and Marge--so . . .

In spite of the fact that Willie Tucker is a "brain" he's a typical teenager and this play is packed with the excitement of youth. Willie is anxious to win a scholarship to Tech and has entered a science contest sponsored to develop ideas to help in national defense. His activities in his home laboratory threaten to blow up his home, his neighbors, and give added gray hairs to his parents . . . not to mention his forgetting to be nice to Marge, his girl friend. Willie and his contest project attract the attention of Dr. Poppoff and his "sister," Sonia, who, after being entertained by the Tuckers, walk off with the model, only to be revealed later as spies. But the secret weapon proves too potent and they return it willingly begging Willie's help in relieving its effects on them. Willie wins the contest and his fellow students arrive to give him rousing cheers, while the police are in and out chasing the spies. Off-stage there's band music and a parade in honor of our hero Willie--everything to make for a rousing finish.

The big discovery--Mr. Tucker gagged in the closet!

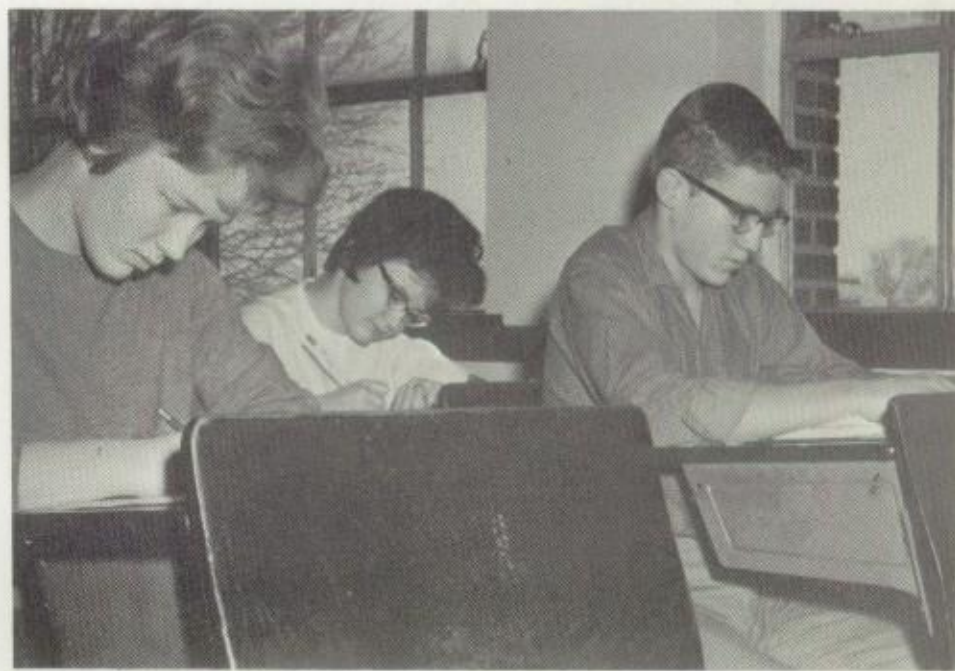

The librarian, Judy Rust, is busy checking out books for Mark Morrill, Ken Goldman, and Ken Boltz, who are completing their final book reports.

Stan Meloy and Mark Morrill had better hurry--the first bell rings at 8:30.

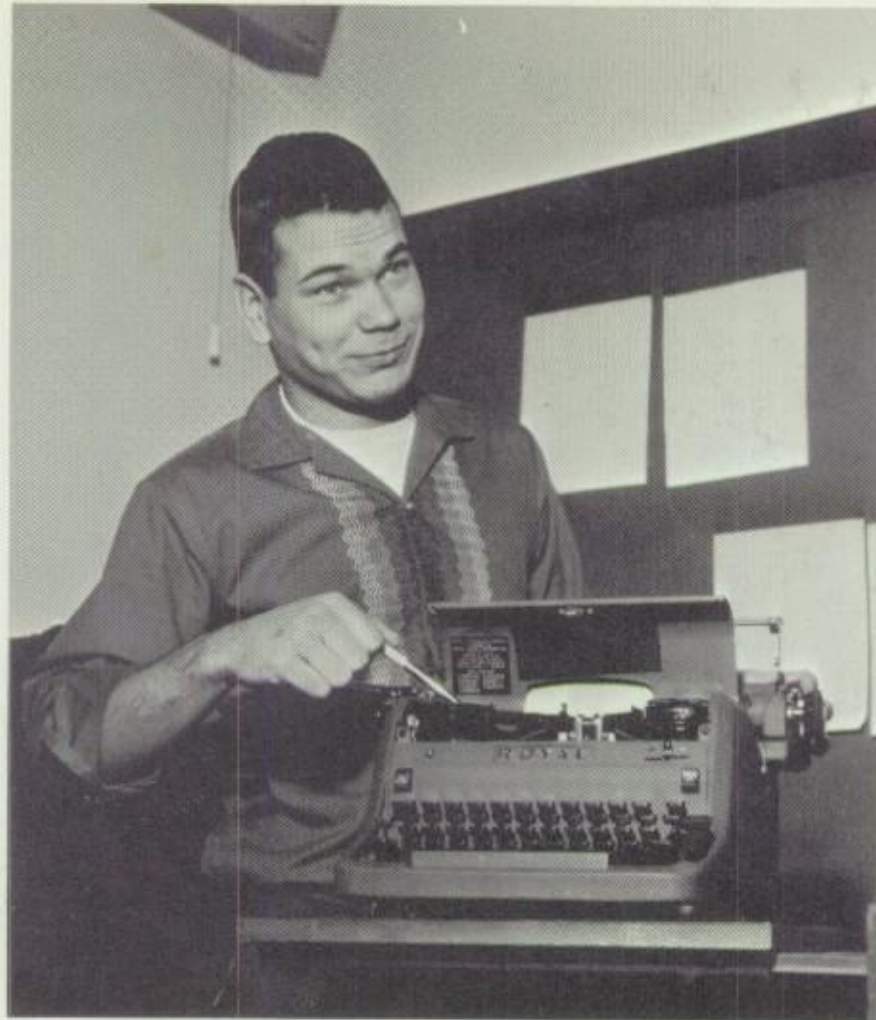

Work and Play During the Holiday Season

The McGuire sisters, disguised as Tom, Ed, and Mark, pantomime "Santa Claus Is Watching You" at the Christmas party.

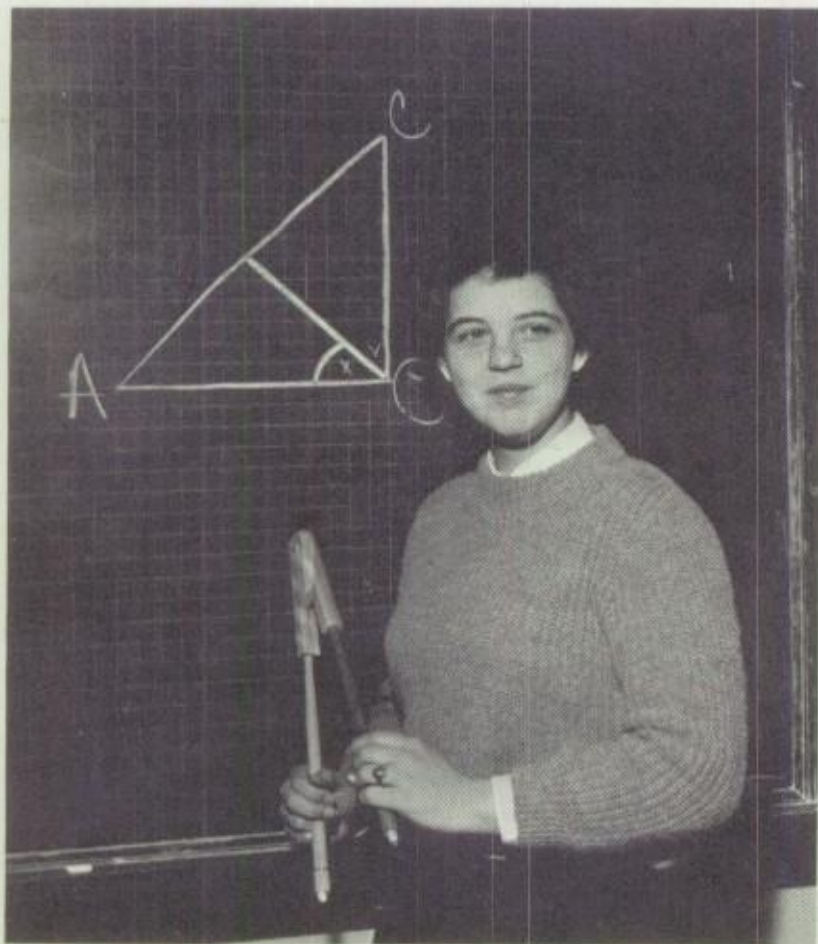

This is a scene typical of the study hall during semester week--concentration and pencil lead are really put to work!

Acting as student teacher, Jim Seaton demonstrates how to change a type-writer ribbon.

Students Perform Teaching Duties

Marsha Cramer, wondering if her students understand, glances at them momentarily.

In the study of English literature, Cheryl Collins reads an excerpt of Milton's "Paradise Lost."

Business

The business course is composed of a one-year study in typewriting, shorthand, and bookkeeping. The department has fifteen manual and six electric typewriters, two electric calculators and two dictaphones.

The use of practice sets is encouraged because it provides experience similar to that found in the business office.

Reviewing the conic sections for a test are: Jerry Dillbeck, Harry Eager, and Susie Jones.

Mathematics

The Mathematics Department, instructed by Mr. Olson, is able to teach the fundamentals of mathematics which include general math, algebra I and II, geometry, and trigonometry. All students are required to take one year of study in this field.

In the Advanced Biology course, the students experiment with plant intake of radioactive sodium.

Science

Struggling with the aspects of science offered at E.H.S. presents a real student challenge. Mixing chemicals, analyzing unknown solutions and balancing equations are everyday procedures. Lectures and detailed discussions provide the background for future endeavors along this line.

Jim Seaton pours sulfuric acid into hydrogen generator under the watchful eyes of Tom Smith and Agnes Snell.

Performing an "experiment" in creative cooking are Sara Coop and Julia Strouss.

Budgeting and household economy are only two of the topics studied by Pat Landers, Paula Stremlau, Carolyn Bonine, and Rita Russell in Home Economics.

Home Economics

Our home economics department is under the direction of Mrs. Town this year. The girls have courses in Home and Family Living which includes the study of foods and clothing, household management, and the mutual relationships of all who constitute a family.

Glen Wilson and Ritch Miller put to good use the techniques learned in Mr. DiMarzio's shop class.

Agriculture

A four-year agriculture course offers studies in animal husbandry, soils, crops, farm mechanics and farm management. Parliamentary procedure is also studied and practiced as an extra-curricular activity--a contribution to the boys' preparation for leadership in the future.

Industrial Arts

The industrial arts classes, taught by Mr. DiMarzio, develop skills in the handicrafts of leatherwork, freehand sketching, woodworking, welding, and mechanical, architectural and electrical drawing.

Testing soil is an interesting operation as Dave Piller, Stan Meloy, and Ralph Sellers will agree.

Penny Goldman and Mary Myers glance through the career file during their free period.

Our guidance counselor, Mr. Baker, is helping Ken Boltz in selecting the right school.

Penny Kuntz, Mary Snell, Rebecca Montooth, Rita Peterson, and Doris Bruner show their skill at speedball during the fifth period physical education class.

Counseling

Our new guidance program, effectively administered by Mr. Baker, should minimize the dropouts and direct all students to the work--academic, professional, vocational--for which they are best suited.

Using the new college material available for seniors are Mark Morrill and Marsha Cramer.

Physical Education

This year Mr. Wineburner and Miss Curry have presented another well-rounded athletic program in which the student body participated vigorously. They offered such seasonal sports as volleyball, baseball, basketball, and football.

Coach Wineburner instructs James Seaton, Gary Lane, Don Harris, Richard Sutton, and Richard Tuttle on the fundamentals of guarding.

Mike Imel and Roberta Stanford take advantage of Mrs. Duckel's records to aid their diction.

Spanish

In general, the Spanish courses aid the student in developing an understanding of the language and its people. Specifically, the students are taught the basic principles of grammar and vocabulary to enable them to acquire considerable knowledge in all phases of the language.

Preparing for the constitution test, Diana Howey, Ed Doughty and Elaine Whittaker review American principles.

History and Geography

In the history and geography courses offered at Earlville, the student has the opportunity to become better acquainted with both the principle and the physical structure of his country.

Bill Dunfrund and Ann Jones, members of the English III class, hear a report from Jerry Thorne on the Canterbury Tales.

English

The study of four years of English has been a requirement in our high school. Rhetoric and types of literature are taught in English I and II. English III is primarily a course in English literature and Senior English is a combination of American literature and advanced rhetoric.

Several members of the world geography class, Kathy Harris and Ken Kreitinger, note the topography of the midwest.

Philip Winslow, head salesman for Ralston Purnia Company, is the speaker of the evening.

The Kaskaskia Hotel in LaSalle is the site of the 1962 banquet.

Honor Banquet and Law Day Observed in Spring

The National Honor Society directs an assembly for the presentation of awards.

This year on May 1 the juniors and seniors visited the office of Mr. Richardson, States Attorney.

Each year an honor banquet is held for students with at least a "B" average. This year forty-one students attended.

T. M. Anderson, attorney at law, leads one of the tours through the LaSalle County Courthouse.

After their successful performance, the cast of "Tattletale" takes a well-earned rest.

Comedy "Tattletale"

Presented by Class of '62

Tod (Wayne Van Horn) reveals the stolen typewriter to Patty (Margo Schmitz) and Ida Mae (Ginger Botts).

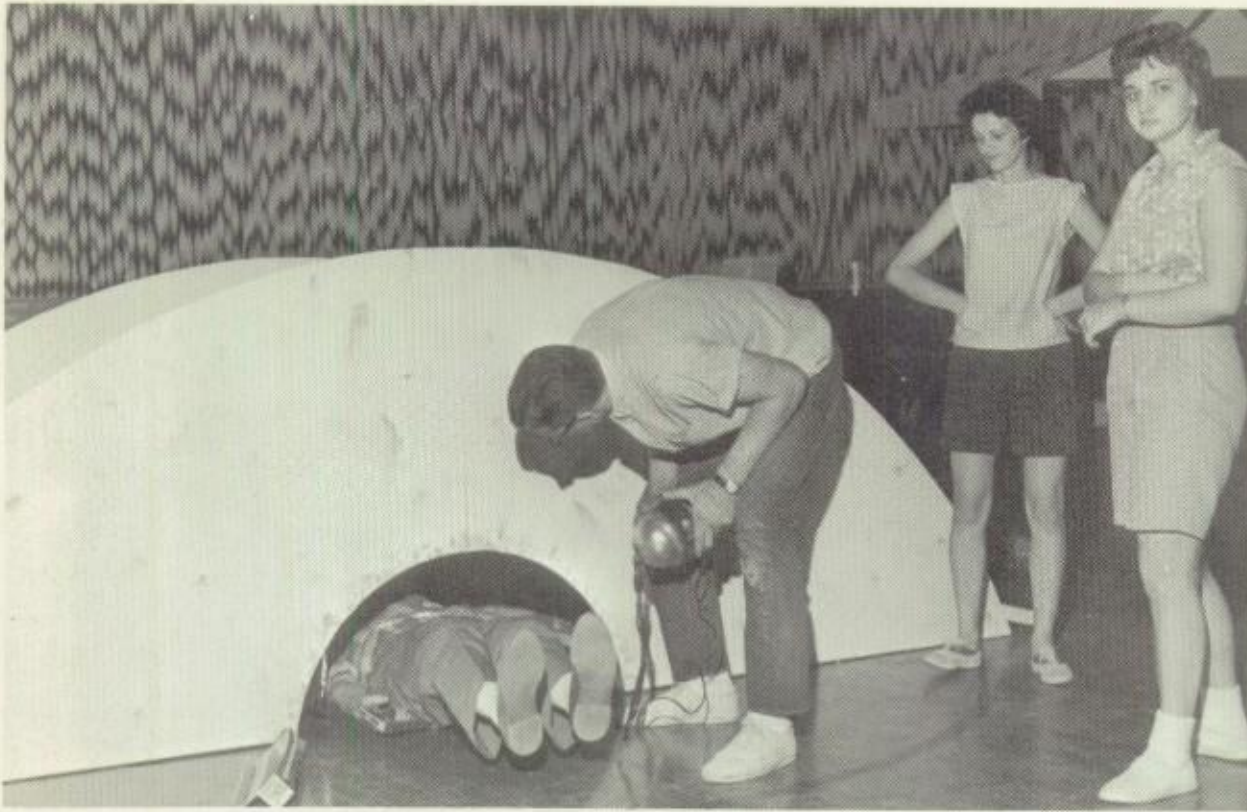

During a rousing argument between Isabell (Carol Stockley) and her fiancé (Joel Zimmerman), Mrs. Blaine (Nancy Hughes) worries about poor little Patty who has had another "fainting spell."

Because of her poor eyesight, Miss Wiggans (Pat Cook) mistakes the dummy for Patty and begins a chain of disastrous events.

At the climax of the play the students are determined to tar and feather the mythical "Ermatrude."

Mr. Hewitt, class sponsor, and Mark Morrill secure the spotlight beneath the bridge while Martha Peterson and Margaret Malone look on.

"The Enchantment of Shangri-La" . . .

The Work That Created It . . .

Dick Dillbeck, Ed Doughty, and Mark Morrill complete the hanging of the 36' long Geisha murals.

One of the lighter moments of the week sees Bill Myers giving Margaret Malone and Barb Frank a ride in the "authentic" rickshaw.

Synthetic cherry trees are placed on each side of the multi-colored fan, the main decoration of the stage teahouse by Bob McGinnis and Teresa Norton.

Mrs. Johnson is shown receiving Sandra Strong and Dick Dillbeck, two of the guests present for her five o'clock tea.

The junior and senior boys descend the stairs as Mrs. Johnson directs them to her living room.

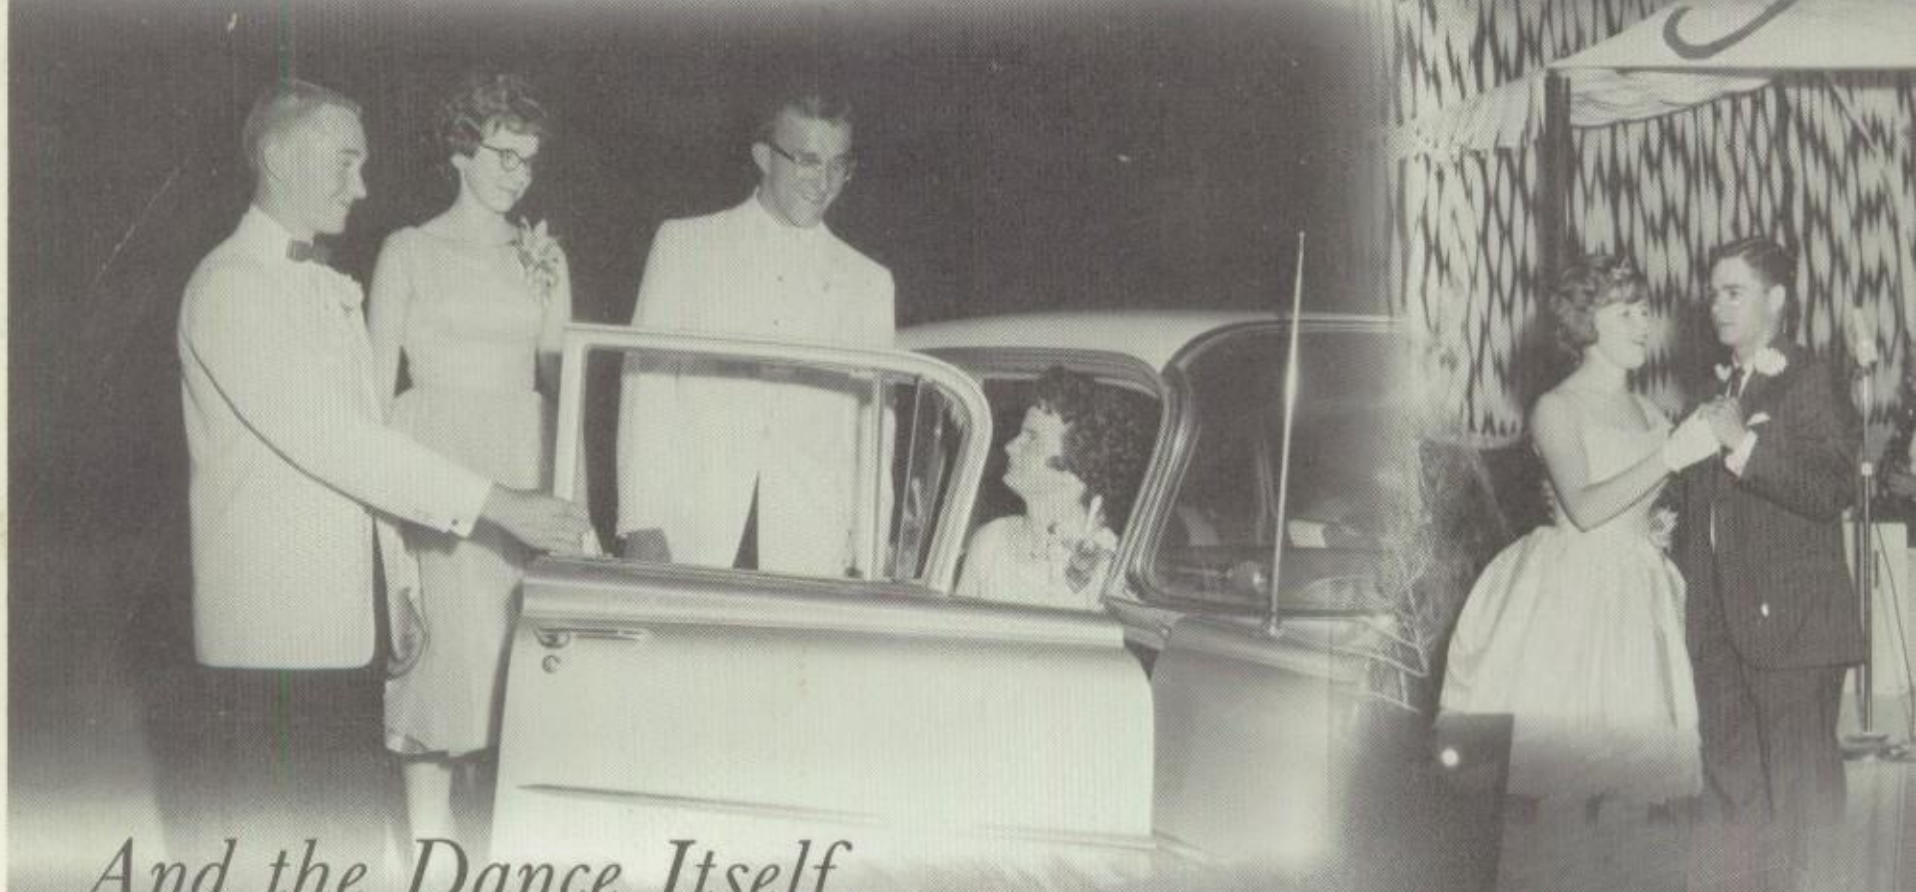

Mrs. Duckels, one of the ladies who presided at the tea table, serves Teresa Norton, Barbara Frank, and Bill Myers.

The Tea and Dinner That Preceded It . . .

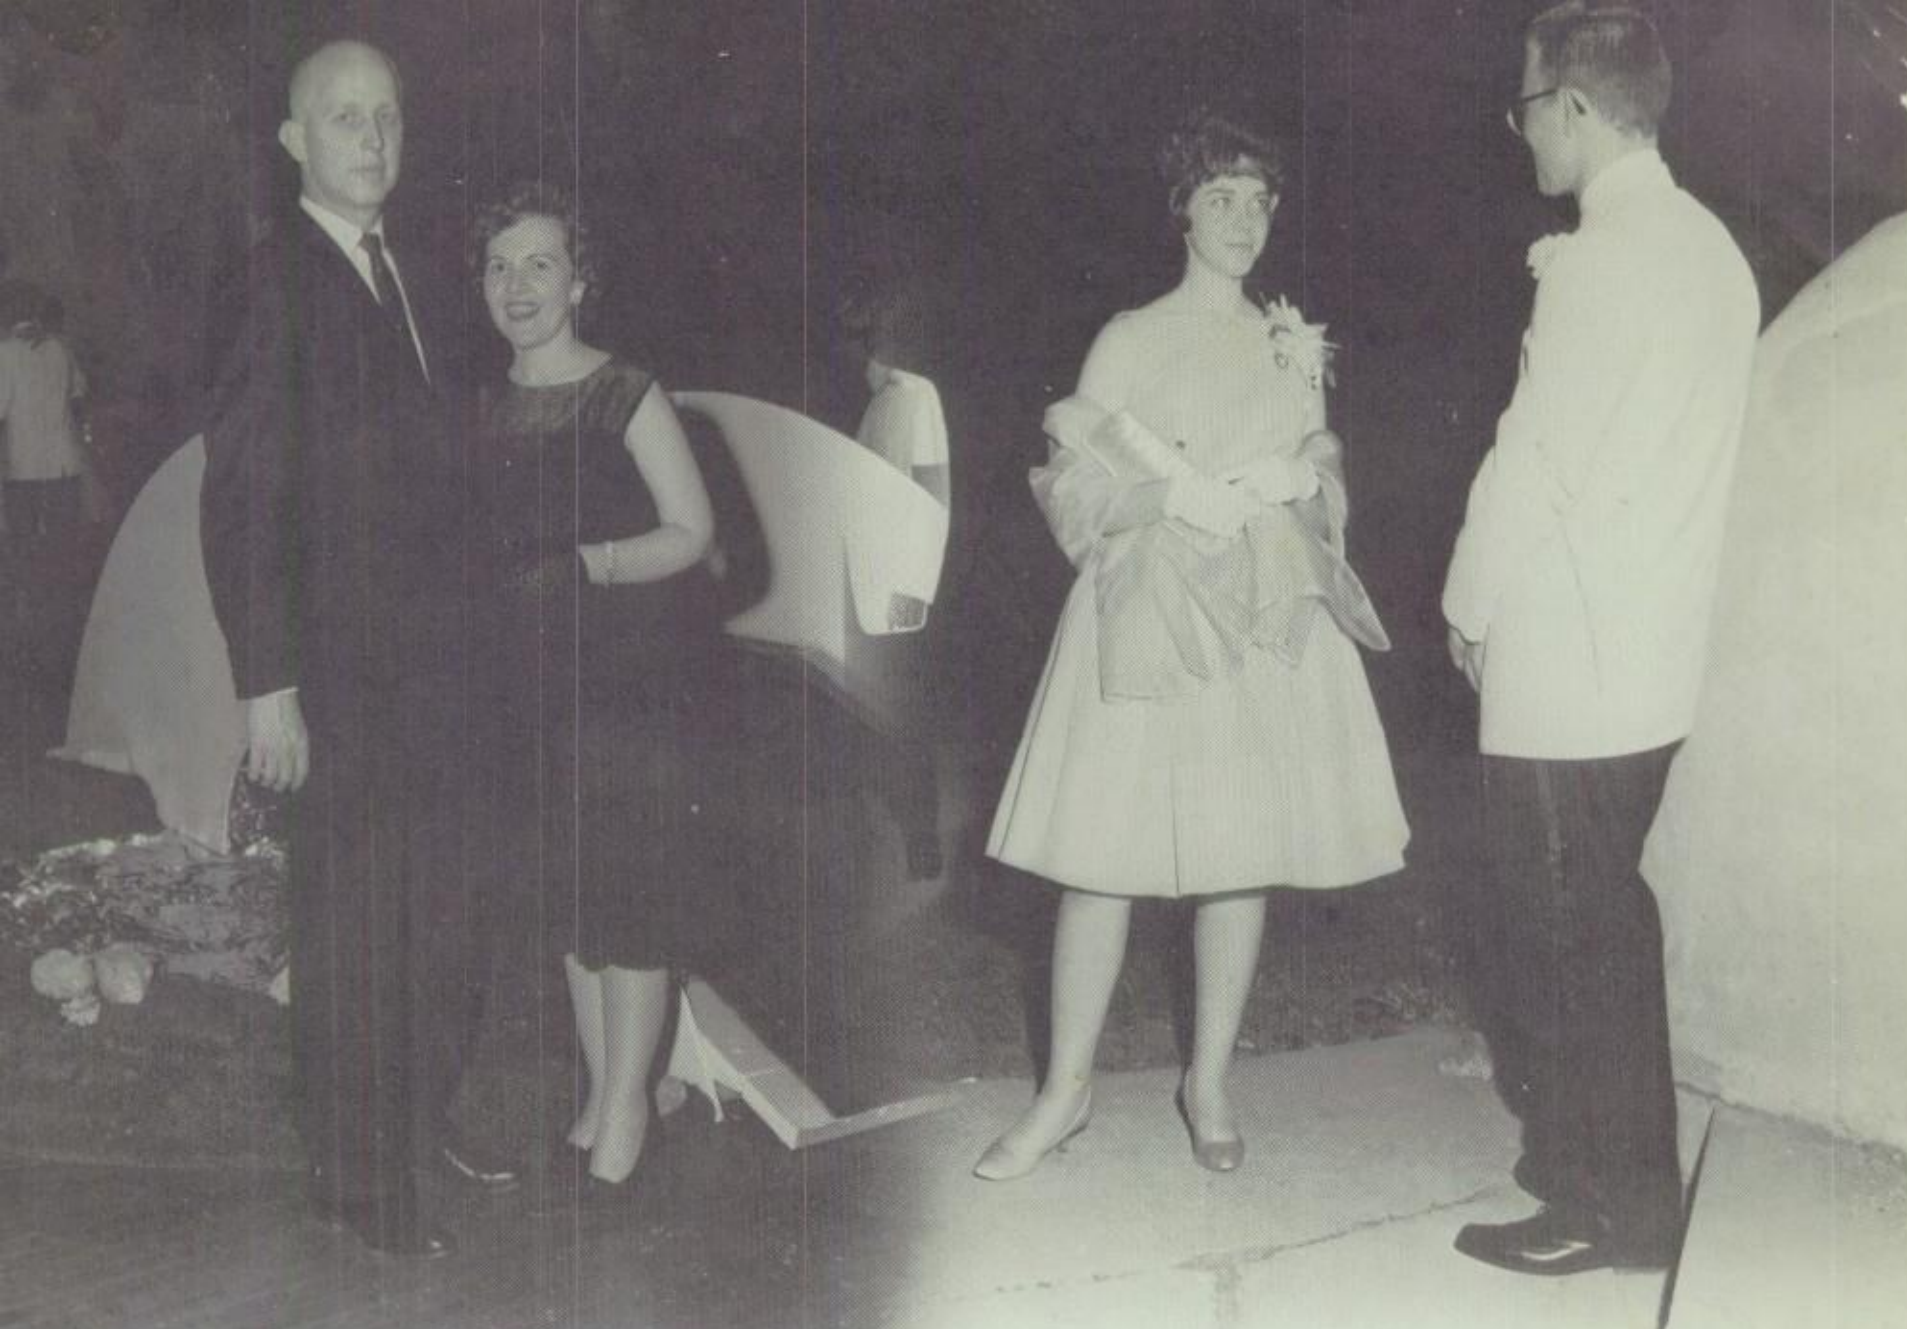

Ten members of the sophomore class, Carolyn Lonie, Richard Sutton, Wally Wilson, Elaine Whitaker, Gerald Martin, Ann Jones, Jerry Thorne, Mary Myers, Willard Landers, and Marlene Cantlin, attired in oriental costumes, were selected to serve the dinner.

And the Dance Itself.

Even this very serious algebra class took on a light tone last year when half the group turned out in Bermuda shorts.

Before class begins, Jim Seaton and Cheryl Collins admire Mike Schmitz's "fashionable" deck pants.

The student body co-operated wholeheartedly with the Student Council's spring project.

Bermuda Day Meets with Enthusiasm Safety First in Dr. Ed.

"OOPS!"--In a "put up" job, Pat Sturgeon and Rick Young view what happens when . . ."

Mr. Baum points out various intricacies of the automobile to Pat and Rick.

Standing on the stairway to their future are some of the senior graduates thinking about great moments of past accomplishments and future challenges.

June 4 marks an ending and a beginning for these seniors.

School Year Ends with Mixed Emotions

The DeKalb Award in agriculture was presented to Larry Stanford for F.F.A. projects, scholastic achievement, farming program, and school activities.

This year Ed Doughty and Jim Seaton were chosen by the faculty as the 1962 representatives for Premiere Boys' State. The Lions Club and the American Legion are their sponsors.

The senior class and the faculty members chose Sandra Strong as the recipient of the D.A.R. award. This award is based on leadership, dependability, service, patriotism, citizenship, and loyalty.

Administration

A guide . . . an example . . . an instrument of knowledge . . . a teacher is all these and more; he is a force in the shaping of a great thing . . . a human destiny.

During the holiday season, Mrs. Johnson entertained at a faculty tea.

In addition to being principal and teaching four English classes, Mrs. Johnson serves as senior class sponsor, library supervisor, director of the senior play, and adviser of the school newspaper.

Principal

Mrs. Johnson's love of entertaining has resulted in many pleasant hours for the upper-classmen. Her home has been the scene of the senior picnic, a holiday reception, and the traditional prom tea. Some of the seniors' fondest memories have their origin in Mrs. Johnson's lovely Victorian home.

In memory of her husband who was fond of sports, Mrs. Johnson in 1962 established a memorial award for the outstanding athlete of the year. This presentation is to be made preferably to a boy with college aspirations.

Classroom Survey Conducted

Board of Education

A school survey group composed of local citizens was organized to study the building needs of the school district. The committee was divided into the following special areas for study: enrollment, faculty and board requirements, building inspection, finance, and state requirements. As a result of the survey, the School Board is now examining plans for a high school addition.

The Board of Education holds monthly meetings to discuss the needs of our district.

Superintendent

Serving as Superintendent of the District, Mr. Wicke holds membership in the Illinois Education Association, National Education Association, American Association of School Administrators, and the Reviewing Committee of the North Central Association. These organizations are all vital to the advancement of modern education. As president of the Earlville Lions Club, Mr. Wicke works for the progress not only of his school but also of the community in which he lives.

Mr. Wicke explains the use of the new overhead projector to Mr. Hewitt.

Sunday afternoon finds Mr. Wicke with his wife and sons, Steve, Mark, and Tom.

Yearbook Features New Cover Concept

Understudies: Ann Jones, Gerald Martin, and Jack Troy.

"Our Years" is designed and constructed out of school hours during weekly summer meetings and sessions two or three times a week during the school year. Last year's annual was submitted to the National Scholastic Press Rating Association and received a second-place certificate together with a guide book that has helped in the production of this year's book. We are hoping for an even higher rating this year.

The business staff collects contributions from businessmen in the Earlville area and sells annuals during the campaign week. Production and content of the book itself is handled entirely by the members of the editorial staff.

Editorial Staff: Penny Goldman, Mrs. Large, Adviser; and Sandra Strong

Business Staff: Sandra Strong, Harriette Gould, Richard Dillbeck, and Margaret Malone.

In the absence of the President, Sandra Strong, Vice-President Ann Jones acted as mistress of ceremonies at the installation program. Edward Doughty and Teresa Norton presented talks of scholarship, service, leadership, and character.

N.H.S. Installs Six New Members

The National Honor Society is founded upon the principle that true education creates a well-rounded personality and thus honors the person who, in the estimation of his teachers, is developing himself fully in the areas of scholarship, leadership, service, and character.

This winter six new members were installed into the organization at a candlelight ceremony at Larsen's Steak House. Guests, parents, and teachers were present and the Student Council served tea following the exercises.

In the spring, two events are on the N.H.S. calendar--the presiding of the president over the Scholastic Banquet and the selection of new members.

As in previous years, the junior high enter their floats in the contest sponsored by the Student Council.

Although the F.H.A. float did not cop a prize, it certainly displayed the school spirit that helped push our Raiders to this year's homecoming victory.

Governing Body Organizes Scholastic Banquet

The Student Council meets once each week during homeroom period to plan various school activities and methods of financing them. The homecoming parade, program, and dance, the high school Christmas party, the annual Scholastic Banquet, and the selection of assemblies to be presented throughout the year are among the group's major undertakings.

In the fall every class votes three of its members into the governing body. Each representative must have at least a "B" average and is placed on probation for one six weeks' period if he falls below it. If he has not raised his grades at the end of that time, the Council replaces him with another member of his class.

In E.H.S. the presidential election is held in the spring in order to allow the person chosen the summer months in which to organize fully the year's program. All remaining officers are elected at the first fall meeting.

The club renders a spirited version of the "Earlville Fight Song" at a home basketball game.

Preceding every Friday game, the Pep Club takes part in a traditional "Raider Rally."

A home football game always brings out the team's support in full force.

As we stand on the stair steps of a new life, viewing the years that are past, our thoughts are stirred by emotions of joy and regret.

We are deeply grateful for the opportunities which our school has offered. Some we have accepted--others we have neglected--and our lives have been enriched or made poorer by our decision.
